Materialising growth for the composites sector in South Africa

MBCC is rolling out short courses around four provinces. Please see the courses below:

THINK COMPOSITES! (CESA accredited course)

Attendees at the course earn 1 CPD point

The 'Think Composites!' 1-day course is essential for anyone who: has started a career in composites, is thinking about a career in composites, or who is involved in the support, development, and production of any composite products or the companies making them. Although the primary focus is on developing the technical workforce for the industry, the course is presented in such a way that it also adds value for non-technical managers of manufacturing companies and manufacturing-related policymakers. The course introduces a common platform and terminology from which industry, academia, and government representatives can engage and build partnerships.

An Introductory course in resin vacuum infusion process, at the same time, showing the advantages of using it, while revealing and explaining some of the potential problems and concerns that the process can raise. Anyone who is interested in infusion can benefit. The course covers technologies, applications, design, and manufacture.
